HISTORY OF THE UNIVERSITY.

LONDON was one of the latest of the great capitals of Europe to provide itself with a local University, for it was not until the 16th Century that any attempt was made to supply the deficiency.

In 1548, Sir Thomas Gresham endowed seven professorships of Divinity, Music, Astronomy, Geometry, Law, Physic, and Rhetoric, respectively, and assigned his mansion in Bishopsgate for the residence and lectures of the professors, with a view to making the instruction in these subjects (which correspond very nearly to the ancient Trivium and Quadrivium) accessible to those who were unable to make use of the older Universities. For a time, and until the great fire of 1666, the institution was carried on in conformity with the founder's intentions, Isaac Barrow, Hooke, Petty, Dr John Ball, and Sir Christopher Wren having been among the earlier resident professors. But, although valuable and interesting courses of lectures are still delivered annually in connexion with Gresham College, that institution has never fulfilled or possessed the means of fulfilling the founder's ideal. In the appendix of Stow's "Annales," 1615, there is what purports to be, in three parts, an account of the "three famous Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, and London." The author of the third of these treatises, Sir George Buck, enumerates the Gresham foundation, the Divinity Schools at Westminster and St Paul's, the Inns of Court and of Chancery, the College of Heralds, the School of Civil Law at Doctors' Commons, and St Paul's School, which had been founded by Dean Colet in 1510, as forming collectively a complete academic system, and "lacking nothing but a common government and the protection of an honourable Chancellor" to give to it the unity and repute of a University.

In 1825 Thomas Campbell, the poet, wrote a public letter to Mr Brougham urging the foundation of a great London University. This appeal was widely read and so favourably received that by 1827 a capital sum of 160,000*l.* was raised by shareholders, and the Duke of Sussex laid the foundation-stone of the institution in Gower Street, now known as University College, London. In 1828 classes in the several faculties of Arts, Law, and Medicine were opened, and 557 students were admitted. Efforts were made by the proprietors to obtain from the Crown a Charter of Incorporation, empowering them to confer degrees; and in anticipation of success the College bore, during several years, the name of the London University. Much delay was occasioned by the opposition of various chartered corporations, but the rejection by the House of Lords in 1834 of a Bill which had passed the Commons for the admission of Dissenters to degrees at Oxford and Cambridge furnished to the friends of the new enterprise an additional reason for urging their claim. In 1835 an Address was presented to the Crown on the motion of Mr Tooke in the House of Commons, praying that a Charter might be granted to the institution then known as the London University. This petition was referred to the Privy Council for consideration and advice, and as a result the following communication was made on the 19th of August, 1835, to the Duke of Somerset as Chairman of the Council, furnishing the outline of the scheme proposed by Lord Melbourne's Government :—

“It is intended by the Government to take the following steps with a view to provide a mode for granting Academical Degrees in London to persons of all religious persuasions, without distinction and without the imposition of any test or disqualification whatever.

“1. The Charter sought for by the Duke of Somerset and others will be granted, incorporating the parties by the title of ‘London University College.’

“2. Similar Charters will be granted to any Institution of the same kind which may be hereafter established.

“3. Another Charter will be granted to persons eminent in literature and science, to act as a Board of Examiners, and to perform all the functions of the Examiners in the Senate House of Cambridge; this body to be termed the ‘University of London.’

“4. Pupils from University and King’s College to be admitted, on certificates of having gone through a course of study at those establishments, and having obtained a proficiency to pass for a Degree, and having conducted themselves to the satisfaction of the Governing Bodies of those Colleges, to be examined, and to be classed according to their relative merits.

“5. Any other Bodies for Education, whether corporated or uncorporated, may from time to time be named by the Crown, and their pupils may be admitted to examination for Degrees.

“The Degrees to be granted to be A.B., A.M., B.L., D.L., B.M., and D.M.”

In an official explanatory letter addressed to the Council in November, 1835, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr Spring Rice (afterwards Lord Monteagle), was instructed to add :

“It should always be kept in mind that what is sought on the present occasion is an equality in all respects with the ancient Universities, freed from those exclusions and religious distinctions which abridge the usefulness of Oxford and Cambridge.”

The proposals of the Government were submitted to the consideration of the proprietary body and accepted. It was generally felt that these proposals furnished the best available solution of the problem, which had been so long a subject of anxious controversy. They amounted to a declaration that the business of teaching should be confided to the Colleges ; but that the duty of examining, of awarding prizes, and of conferring degrees should be entrusted to an entirely separate and independent body to be called the University of London. The friends and supporters of University College cordially welcomed the Government plan, although it gave them far less than they had at first demanded, and although the acceptance of it implied the renunciation of all claim to exercise the full functions of a University, and placed them on a footing of equality with some younger and less important institutions. In a published letter issued by the Duke of Somerset in the name of the Council, and endorsed by the unanimous recommendation of the Professors, the proprietors of the new institution were counselled to accept the proposed compromise. Accordingly a Charter<sup>1</sup> was granted by King William IV. on the 28th of November, 1836, constituting the present University, and on the same day a Charter was granted to University College.

Among the earliest Fellows nominated by the Crown as the Senate of the new University were the Earl of Burlington, afterwards Duke of Devonshire, Chancellor; Sir John W. Lubbock, father of the present Lord Avebury, Vice-Chancellor; Lord Brougham; Bishops Maltby, Stanley, Thirlwall, and Otter; Dr Thomas Arnold of Rugby, Mr Hallam, Lord Macaulay, Sir George Cornewall Lewis, Lord Monteagle, and Mr Grote. The Senate has since included among its members Dr Parkes, Mr W. Spottiswoode, Lord Cardwell, Sir Henry Sumner Maine, Sir Joseph Hooker, Professors Faraday and Huxley, Sir Joshua Fitch, Lord Arthur Russell, Dr (afterwards Sir) William Smith, Lord Herschell, Sir Henry Roscoe, Professor Rücker (now Sir Arthur Rücker, Principal of the University, 1901-1908), Lord Avebury, Lord Lister, Mr (now Sir) Victor Horsley, Sir Richard Jebb, Sir Hubert Parry, Dr (afterwards Sir) Michael Foster, and Dr Robertson (now Bishop of Exeter).

King's College, London, had in August, 1829, received a Charter of incorporation establishing it "as a College in "which instruction in the doctrines and duties of Christianity as taught by the Church of England should be for "ever combined with other branches of useful education." This College was also named, with several other Colleges both Metropolitan and Provincial, as an institution whose students were entitled to present themselves for the degrees of the new University.

The first Charter<sup>2</sup> of the University was formally renewed by Her Majesty Queen Victoria in 1837,* and a Supplemental Charter<sup>3</sup> was granted in 1850 affiliating certain additional Colleges.

Neither Charter, however, contained any provision for incorporating the Graduates or giving to them any share in the administration of the affairs of the University. In 1848 an influential Committee of the Graduates was formed with a view, in the first place, to the protection of their academical and general interests and to the cultivation of more intimate relations with each other and with the Senate, and also with the ultimate object of securing the recognition of the Graduates as members of the corporate body and their representation in Parliament. Before these objects were attained, the Graduates' Committee evinced an active interest in the affairs of the University, and in particular succeeded in procuring the enactment of an important Statute in 1854, "to extend the rights enjoyed by the Graduates of Oxford and Cambridge in respect to the practice of Physic to the Graduates of the University of London." By this Act the degree of M.B. in the University became recognized as a licence to practise. Four years later the new Charter<sup>1</sup> of 1858 admitted the Graduates as part of the corporate body of the University, and gave to them the right to assemble in Convocation.

During the first twenty years of its existence, the compromise, by which the relative shares of the Colleges and the University in the academic work of London were allocated, had been carefully observed; but experience had not wholly fulfilled the hopes of its framers and advocates. No candidates were admissible to the degrees of the University unless they were certified to be students in University College or King's College, or in some one of the other affiliated institutions named in the Charter. Among these were the principal Nonconformist Colleges in London and the suburbs, the Roman Catholic seminaries at Stonyhurst, Ushaw, Ware, Bath, and two or three places in Ireland, the Queen's Colleges at Birmingham and Liverpool, the Wesleyan Colleges at Taunton and Sheffield, and other provincial institutions. This restriction was intended to serve as a security that the Graduates had not only acquired knowledge but had obtained it at an institution of academical rank. It soon became apparent, however, that the affiliated institutions, several of which were hardly colleges, but rather secondary schools of good repute, interpreted studentship in very different ways, and that some of them competed with each other in relaxing the conditions on which the needful certificate for the University was granted. The governing body of the University had no power to reject unsatisfactory certificates or to criticize the regulations under which the Colleges awarded them. It possessed no visitorial authority and no right to inquire into the methods of teaching, or to effect improvements. The sole means possessed by the Senate whereby the efficiency of the Colleges could be tested was the examination of their students; and its sole means of influencing the course and character of the teaching was to be found in its schemes and regulations for examination. To the business of examination therefore it practically confined itself, and by general consent it was allowed to have discharged this duty well. The list of examiners who have been appointed from time to time will be found to include the most eminent experts in science, medicine, law, literature, and philosophy; and public confidence in their ability and fairness has never been wanting. It was therefore as an examining body that the University was chiefly known and its public usefulness mainly achieved.

As a result of this experience the Charter of 1858 contained provisions practically abolishing the exclusive connexion of the University with the affiliated Colleges and empowering the Senate to dispense with certificates of studentship in the Faculties of Arts and Laws. For Medical Degrees, however, evidence of attendance and clinical practice at some recognized medical institution was still required. Otherwise all the distinctions of the University were henceforth to be obtained solely on the ground of proficiency as shown in examination. The actual Charter by which the University was governed until 1900 was dated January 6, 1863.<sup>1</sup> It differed from that of 1858 only in one particular, viz., that it empowered the Senate to confer the degrees of Bachelor and Master in Surgery. In 1867 a Supplementary Charter<sup>2</sup> conferred upon the University the power to institute special examinations for women; and in the same year the Reform Act gave to the Graduates the right to send one Representative to Parliament.

In 1870 a new building in Burlington Gardens was opened by Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, and occupied by the University until its removal to South Kensington in March, 1900.

The effect of the new provisions in the Charter of 1858 was immediate. In that year, although the University had been established twenty-one years, the candidates for Matriculation numbered only 299, and the number of candidates for the Degree of B.A. was 72. Since that date the number has steadily and largely increased.

The experiment of offering encouragement for women to pursue a course of academic education was at first tried under limitations which somewhat impeded its success. In virtue of the powers given in the Charter of 1867, two forms of certificate were offered to women, the one of General and the other of Higher Proficiency. In the scheme for both examinations prominence was given to those subjects which it was presumed that women and their teachers would prefer. The General Examination corresponded in its requirements to the Matriculation Examination, and each subject for the Higher Examination was intended to correspond generally to Honours in the Intermediate Examination in Arts. But the number availing themselves of this privilege was small, and the privilege itself was not highly valued. At the first General Examination only nine candidates presented themselves and six passed. In 1870 only six candidates entered for the higher certificates, and only one of these took up two subjects. Moreover it was found that the chief distinctions attained by women in these examinations were not gained in the special subjects, but in the classical languages, mathematics, and science. It was urged by the teachers that women did not desire a scheme of instruction exclusively devised for their use, but would prefer to have access to the ordinary degrees and honours, and to be subject to the same tests of qualification that were imposed on other students.

After much discussion the Senate and Convocation agreed in 1878 to accept from the Crown a Supplemental Charter,<sup>1</sup> making every degree, honour, and prize awarded by the University accessible to students of both sexes on perfectly equal terms. The University of London was thus the first academic body in the United Kingdom to admit women as candidates for degrees.

In June 1879, at the first Matriculation Examination opened to women, 68 entered and 51 passed, of whom 11 were placed in the Honours Division. It must be remembered that the average age of the women was rather higher than that of the men, and that at first only a few women, who had either unusual ambition or had enjoyed exceptional advantages, were tempted to become candidates for University Examinations. The proportion of successful women at the next Matriculation Examination was 68·4 per cent., and as time has gone on the percentage of passes has continuously approached that of the men. If the results up to 1911 be taken, it will be found that there were 112,643 entries of male candidates, of whom 55,283 passed, and 33,450 entries of women candidates, of whom 16,560 passed, i.e., 49·0 per cent., and 49·5 per cent., respectively, giving a small difference in favour of women candidates.

Their success, however, has not been confined to the Matriculation Examination. In the Examinations for Degrees, and also in Post-graduate work, women have shown themselves capable of competing successfully with men on even terms, and, by the uniformly good results obtained by them, have fully justified the action of the University in throwing open its examinations and in granting degrees to them.

The full statistical record of the results of the examinations of the University is published annually in the University Calendar, from which will be learnt the proportions of men and women candidates respectively who have presented themselves for examination during the last thirty years.

One innovation in the traditional practice of Universities in awarding degrees in the Faculty of Arts was adopted from the first in the Matriculation Examination by the recognition of the English language as a necessary branch of study in addition to Latin and Greek. In 1859 special provision was made for including English Philology and Literature in the examinations for degrees and honours in Arts. The University also founded, for the first time in England, a Faculty of Science, and in the year 1860 began to hold examinations for the degrees of Bachelor and Doctor in that Faculty. The abandonment of the condition of collegiate attendance in 1858 rendered it necessary to seek other guarantees for continuous study, and an Intermediate Examination in Arts was introduced in 1859. The candidate for the degree of B.A. was then required to pass two examinations and was no longer permitted to obtain a degree by a single examination two years after Matriculation. Similar arrangements were made on the institution of the Degrees of Bachelor and Doctor of Science in 1860 and Bachelor of Laws in 1867, when the University ceased to require that all candidates for this last degree should have previously graduated in Arts. The first Doctor of Literature was admitted in 1868. Degrees in Surgery were instituted in 1863, and in Music in 1877. The University also instituted Special Examinations<sup>1</sup> in the Hebrew Text of the Old Testament, the Greek Text of the New Testament, the Evidences of the Christian Religion and Scripture History (1839), and in subjects relating to Public Health (1876) for which a branch of the M.D. Examination was afterwards substituted.

The University established a Special Examination in the Art, Theory, and History of Teaching, with a view to encouraging persons who intend to adopt the teacher's profession to acquire special training for their work. No candidate was eligible for the diploma who was not already a graduate. To the theoretical part of the Examination a practical exercise in teaching a class in the presence of the Examiner was always added. This Examination was held for the last time in 1903 and was superseded by the Examination in Pedagogy. In 1910 the title of this Examination was changed to the "Examination for the Teacher's Diploma." In this year also a more advanced Examination for both Internal and External Students called "The Examination for the Higher Diploma in Pedagogy" was established and held for the first time in December 1910.

The following degrees are also granted by the University:— In the Faculty of Theology, B.D. and D.D.; in the Faculty of Engineering, B.Sc. and D.Sc.; and in the Faculty of Economics, B.Sc. and D.Sc.

As at present constituted under the Act of 1898 and the Statutes framed by the Commissioners thereunder in 1900, and amended in 1908, the University consists of (a) the Chancellor, (b) the existing Fellows for their respective lives, (c) the Senate, (d) the Appointed and Recognized Teachers during their tenure of office, (e) the Graduates, and (f) the Students.<sup>1</sup> The Senate consists of the Chancellor, the Chairman for the time being of Convocation, and 54 persons appointed in accordance with the terms of the Statutes, Section 12 (see p. 71), who may or may not be graduates of the University.

The first Chancellor was the Earl of Burlington, afterwards Duke of Devonshire, who held office from 1836 to 1856. His successors were the Earl Granville (1856-1891), the Earl of Derby (1891-1893), Lord Herschell (1893-1899), the Earl of Kimberley (1899-1902), and the Earl of Rosebery, who is now (1912) in office. The Vice-Chancellors have been in succession Sir John William Lubbock, Sir John G. Shaw Lefevre, Mr George Grote, Sir Edward Ryan, Sir John Lubbock (now Lord Avebury), Sir George Jessel (Master of the Rolls), Sir James Paget, Sir Julian Goldsmid, Sir Henry Roscoe, Dr Robertson (now Bishop of Exeter), Dr Philip Henry Pye-Smith, Sir Edward Busk, Sir William Collins, Professor Micaiah John Muller Hill, Sir William Collins, and Dr Wilmot Parker Herringham, who is now (1912) in office.

Membership of Convocation of the University is limited by the Statutes<sup>2</sup> made under the University of London Act, 1898, to the following persons:—

(i.) The Graduates who on the day fixed for the coming into force of these Statutes are qualified according to the existing regulations of the University to become members of Convocation, but have not yet been registered ;

(ii.) All other Graduates of three years' standing from the date of their first degree or who shall have attained a degree higher than that of Bachelor, provided always that if and whenever the Senate shall by any Statute create any new degree, the holders thereof shall not, unless Convocation so determine, be entitled to be registered ;

(iii.) All members of the three Standing Committees of the Senate who are not already members of Convocation during their tenure of office.

The above definition includes all women Graduates, since Convocation resolved, on January 17th, 1882, "that female "graduates be admitted to Convocation"; and on May 8th, 1883, "that all Doctors of Music and all Bachelors of Music "of three years' standing be admitted to Convocation."

The first Chairman of Convocation was Charles James Foster, LL.D., the second was John Storrar, M.D., the third was Frederic John Wood, LL.D., who was succeeded in 1892 by Mr (now Sir) Edward Henry Busk, M.A., LL.B., the present Chairman. The first Fellows nominated by the Graduates in 1859, were Dr John Storrar and Mr T. Smith Osler. Besides the privilege of nominating a senatorial list on every fourth vacancy, the Charter of 1858 conferred on Convocation the power of accepting, with the consent of the Senate, any new or supplemental Charter, of consenting to the surrender of a Charter, and also of discussing any matter whatsoever relating to the University and declaring the opinion of Convocation on any such matter. The ordinary meetings of Convocation take place in each year on the second Tuesday in October, on the Friday before the third Monday in January, and on the Tuesday before Presentation Day.

Since 1867 the University has been represented in Parliament. The first Member of Parliament for the University was the Rt. Hon. Robert Lowe (elected in 1868), who was raised to the peerage as Viscount Sherbrooke in 1880. He was succeeded in the representation of the University by the Rt. Hon. Sir John Lubbock, Bart., who sat till 1900, when he was raised to the peerage as Lord Avebury, Sir Michael Foster, K.C.B. (1900-1906), and Sir Philip Magnus, the present member who was elected in 1906 and re-elected in January and December, 1910.

During many years proposals were made and discussions took place in the colleges and learned societies with a view to the establishment of a scheme for the more complete organisation of the academic resources of the Metropolis. It was urged that the compromise arrived at in 1837, whereby the examining authority was completely detached from the teaching bodies, had often the effect of imposing upon professors and others engaged in the instruction of candidates uniform lines of study and the use of special books, thus interfering injuriously with the legitimate freedom of the teachers. The Senate and Convocation had become partly convinced of the need for a closer relation between it and its examiners on the one hand and the authorities of the great teaching institutions on the other; and resolutions having this object in view had been proposed for discussion on more than one occasion. Moreover, it was contended that the main business of a University was not only to examine and to confer degrees, but also by other means to promote the interests of learning. It was especially desired that the Colleges should once more become, but in a truer sense than at first, constituent parts of the academic body, and that London should possess a teaching University with power to regulate higher education and the means of becoming a great seat of learning corresponding in its size and resources to the wealth and imperial position of the largest city in the world. Some of those who advocated this view believed that the problem could best be solved by the establishment in London of a second University, composed of Colleges only and recognizing none but bonâ fide students in those Colleges, the present University remaining an imperial institution granting degrees and honours to all comers on condition of examination only. Others urged that some confusion and overlapping would occur if there were two Universities in the Metropolis, and that the present University might be so modified and reconstructed as to take a substantial share in teaching, and yet continue the more general and cosmopolitan work in which it has been so long engaged.

In response to a very general desire, the Government on two occasions appointed Royal Commissions, and entrusted to them the task of considering the whole question and reporting thereon. The first of these, under the presidency of the late Lord Selborne, made its report in 1888; and the second, consisting of a larger number of members, was constituted in 1892, with Earl Cowper as its Chairman, and made its report two years afterwards. This latter report recommended that the existing University should be re-organised, and that, while continuing to discharge all its present functions as an examining body for collegiate and non-collegiate students in all parts of the Empire, it should also establish closer relations with the great London Colleges and Medical Schools, give to the authorities of those institutions a larger share in the government of the University, and seek in other ways to co-ordinate and control the higher education of London. A bill was subsequently introduced into Parliament by the Lord President of the Council for the purpose of giving effect to these recommendations, and in 1898 the "University of London Act" received the Royal assent.

This Act,<sup>1</sup> while preserving the corporate continuity of the University, provided for its complete re-constitution in general harmony with the recommendations of the Commission of 1892. Any future constitutional changes, consistent with the provisions of the Act, can be made by statutes framed by the Senate after consulting Convocation, subject to the right of Convocation to appeal to the Privy Council. The Act appointed a Commission, presided over by Lord Davey, to frame the needful Statutes for the University, but it contained definite directions to that Commission in regard to several important details, the chief of which was the composition of the new Senate, viz.:—

"1. The Senate shall consist of the Chancellor and of other members appointed as follows :

"Four by Her Majesty with the advice of Her Privy Council ;

"Seventeen by the Convocation, of whom the chairman of Convocation shall be one, and the remaining sixteen shall be elected, by voting-papers delivered personally or sent by post as at present, by the registered graduates in their separate faculties in such proportions as the Statutory Commission shall determine ;

"Two each by the Royal Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons ;

"One by each of the four Inns of Court and two by the Incorporated Law Society ;

"Two each by University and King's Colleges ;

"One by the Corporation of London ;

“One by the Council of the City and Guilds of London Institute ;

“Sixteen by the Faculties ” (consisting of teachers of the University) ;

“Provided that if and as long as any of the above-mentioned bodies fail to exercise the power of appointment hereby given, in every such case the power shall be exercised by Her Majesty, with the advice of the Privy Council.

“2. The Senate shall be the supreme governing body and executive of the University. All University property shall be administered by the Senate, and (except as herein-after specified) the Senate shall have the entire conduct of the University and all its affairs and functions, provided always that—

“(a) No religious test shall be adopted or imposed, and no applicant for a University appointment shall be at any disadvantage on the ground of religious opinions ;

“(b) No procedure to any degree shall be allowed without examination or other adequate test, nor shall any honorary or ad eundem degree be conferred, unless the Senate, in exceptional cases, think fit to confer such a degree ;

“(c) No disability shall be imposed on the ground of sex.

“3. There shall be three standing committees of the Senate—

“(1.) The Academic Council, being a committee for internal students of the University : (2.) The Council for External Students, being a Committee for those students of the University, whether collegiate or non-collegiate, who are not internal students of the University : (3.) A standing Board to promote the extension of University teaching.

“The Chancellor, the Vice-Chancellor, and the Chairman of Convocation, shall be ex-officio members of all three committees.

“The functions of these committees shall be advisory.”

Other provisions define the several powers and duties of the Academic Council, the Faculties and the Boards of Studies and deal with the recognition of Colleges as schools of the University, the appointment and recognition of University teachers, and the conditions affecting External and Internal students respectively.

The statutes promulgated by the Commission were approved by Parliament on 29th June, 1900. In March, 1900, an arrangement was made with the Government by which the seat of the University was transferred to the Imperial Institute Buildings at South Kensington. The whole of the building is the property of the Government, but the main central portion, including the Great Hall and Grand Entrance, the east wing and its accessory structures, are appropriated to the uses of the University.

The new Senate met for the first time on October 24th, 1900, and in July, 1901, appointed as Principal of the University Sir Arthur William Rücker, M.A., LL.D., D.Sc., F.R.S., who held that office until his resignation in September, 1908, when he was succeeded by Sir Henry Alexander Miers, M.A., D.Sc., F.R.S., the present Principal. Since the re-organisation the work of the University has developed in many directions. In the Session 1911-12, there were 4,642 Internal Students, and the number of persons who passed the Matriculation Examinations has increased from 1,917 in 1900 to 3,140<sup>1</sup> in 1911. The Courses of Study for Internal Students and the Examinations both for Internal and External Students have been arranged or modified. Degrees are now granted in Divinity, and Courses have been established for the Degree of B.Sc. specially suited for those who wish to take that Degree in the subjects of Engineering, Economics (including Commerce and Industry), Agriculture, Human Anatomy and Morphology, Mining and Metallurgy, Sociology, and Veterinary Science. In 1909 regulations for a degree of M.S. in Dentistry were adopted. Inter-Collegiate Courses of Lectures and University Courses in a large number of Subjects have been specially arranged by the Senate. In the case of Physiology, a Laboratory has been founded in the University Buildings under the control of Dr Waller, F.R.S., and largely at the expense of the late Sir Walter Palmer and the Messrs Alfred and George Palmer.

A scheme for the Inspection of Schools has been adopted, and School Certificates (Junior, Senior and Higher) are granted at Schools under Inspection approved by the University to pupils who have passed the respective Examinations. The Senior Examination is of Matriculation standard.

Arrangements have been made with the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge and the Joint Matriculation Board of the Northern Universities (Manchester, Liverpool, Leeds and Sheffield) for the mutual recognition, under certain conditions, of the following Examinations :—London Matriculation, Oxford Responsions and Senior Local, Cambridge Previous and Senior Local, Higher Examination of the Oxford and Cambridge Schools' Examination Board, and the Matriculation Certificate and Senior School Certificate of the Joint Matriculation Board of the Universities of Manchester, Liverpool, Leeds and Sheffield.

On October 1st, 1902, the University Extension work which had been carried on for over 25 years by the London Society for the Extension of University Teaching was handed over by the Society to the University of London, and is now under the direction of the University Board to Promote the Extension of University Teaching. In the last Session of the work under the London Society 167 courses of lectures were delivered at about 70 Centres in different parts of the Metropolitan Area, and the total number of entries for the courses was 15,204 while nearly 2,000 certificates were awarded on the results of the examinations held at the close of the courses. The vigour and success of the work has been fully maintained since its transfer to the University of London. The Senate, in order to encourage thoroughness and continuity of work on the part of University Extension Students, in 1908, established Diplomas in History, in Literature, and in Economics and Social Science, to be awarded for an approved four years' course of work, tested by examination. An Examination for a certificate in Religious Knowledge was also instituted.

In 1909, a scheme of Tutorial Classes for working people was adopted and has made considerable progress.

The University has also organised Courses of Study for Foreign Teachers in the Long Vacation.

Shortly after the re-constitution of the University, University College expressed itself willing to be incorporated in the University by handing over the land, funds and buildings which belonged to it, and by placing itself under the complete control of the University. To facilitate this arrangement, the Worshipful Company of Drapers undertook the responsibility for the College debt of £30,000, and sums amounting in all to £200,000 were received from that Company, Sir Donald Currie, and other donors, of whom two of the most munificent were anonymous.

The Act, entitled University College London (Transfer) Act, 1905,<sup>1</sup> empowering the transfer of University College London to the University received the Royal Assent on 11th July, 1905. Under this Act the College and the property and trust funds of the College except such as belong to or are held in trust for University College Hospital and the Medical School attaching thereto and the boys' school carried on by the College on the appointed day (January 1st, 1907) were transferred to the University with the intent that the College should be continued under the direct control of the University as a place of teaching and research in which wide academic culture may be secured by the variety of the subjects taught in different faculties including preliminary and intermediate medical studies.

A similar Act,<sup>2</sup> entitled The King's College London (Transfer) Act, providing for the incorporation of King's College in the University received the Royal Assent in August, 1908. In this case the transfer on the appointed day (January 1st, 1910) of power, duties, and property was confined to matters connected with Faculties of the University other than the Faculty of Theology. The Council of King's College remains the Governing Body so far as the Department of Theology is concerned, which Department is by the Act constituted a School of the University.

In 1903 the Goldsmiths' Company presented to the University the Library of Economic Literature collected by Professor Foxwell, valued at £10,000, and provided the necessary Library accommodation in the University Buildings. In 1904 the Company presented to the University their Institute at New Cross, together with 4½ acres of unoccupied land. The College was opened under the name of Goldsmiths' College in September, 1905.

Particulars of other gifts and benefactions, and of assistance which has from time to time been given to the University by the Treasury and the London County Council, are given in the following pages.

In February 1909, the Government announced the appointment of a Royal Commission on the subject of University Education in London, with the following terms of reference :—

To inquire into the working of the present organisation of the University of London, and into other facilities for advanced education (general, professional, and technical) existing in London for persons of either sex above secondary school age ; to consider what provision should exist in the Metropolis for University teaching and research ; to make recommendations as to the relations which should in consequence subsist between the University of London, its incorporated Colleges, the Imperial College of Science and Technology, the other Schools of the University, and the various public institutions and bodies concerned ; and further to recommend as to any changes of constitution and organisation which appear desirable. In considering these matters, regard should also be had to the facilities for education and research which the Metropolis should afford for specialist and advanced students in connexion with the provision existing in other parts of the United Kingdom and of his Majesty's Dominions beyond the Seas.

The Right Hon. R. B. Haldane, K.C. (afterwards Viscount Haldane), was appointed Chairman of the Commission, and the members are :—

The Right Hon. Viscount Milner, G.C.B., G.C.M.G.,
The Right Hon. Sir Robert Romer, G.C.B., Sir Robert L. Morant, K.C.B., Mr Laurence Currie, M.A., Mr (afterwards Sir) W. S. M'Cormick, M.A., LL.D., Mr E. B. Sargant, M.A., and Mrs Creighton, with Mr J. Kemp and Mr H. F. Heath as Joint Secretaries.

AND WE FURTHER WILL AND ORDAIN, that whenever a vacancy shall occur in the office of Chancellor of the said University, either by death, resignation, or otherwise, We, Our Heirs or Successors, will, under Our or Their Sign Manual, nominate a fit and proper person to be the Chancellor instead of the Chancellor occasioning such vacancy; and in the mean time the duties of the Chancellor shall be performed by the Vice-Chancellor, or Fellow performing the duties of Vice-Chancellor under the provision hereinafter contained; and the Vice-Chancellor or Fellow so performing the duties of Vice-Chancellor and Fellows shall have all such powers as are hereby given to the Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, and Fellows.

10. AND WE FURTHER WILL AND ORDAIN, that the office of Vice-Chancellor of the University shall be an annual office; and the Vice-Chancellor hereinbefore named shall, at the expiration of one year from the first of July, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-six, go out of office, and the Members of the Senate shall, at a Sitting to be holden by them for that purpose, on some day within a month before the expiration of the tenure of the said office, of which due notice shall be given, elect some one of the Fellows of the University to be the Vice-Chancellor, and so from time to time annually; or, in case of the death, resignation, or other avoidance of any such Vice-Chancellor before the expiration of his year of office, shall, at a Meeting to be holden by them for that purpose, as soon as conveniently may be, of which due notice shall be given, elect one other of the said Fellows to be Vice-Chancellor for the remainder of the year in which such death, resignation, or other avoidance shall happen; and until such election, the duties of Vice-Chancellor shall be performed by the Senior Fellow for the time being. And We further will and ordain, that the seniority of the Fellows nominated by this Our Charter shall be determined by the order in which their names appear in this Charter; and the seniority of Fellows hereafter appointed or elected at the same time, by the order in which their names shall appear in the Instrument or appointment of Instrument or Certificate of election.

11. AND WE FURTHER WILL AND ORDAIN, that if at any time, by death or otherwise, a vacancy shall be created in the body of the Fellows, then, and so often as the same shall happen, new Fellows shall be appointed in manner herein provided, so that the number of Thirty-six Fellows may be kept complete, exclusive of the Chancellor and Vice-Chancellor for the time being.

12. AND WE FURTHER WILL AND ORDAIN, that as to all vacancies which shall from time to time occur while the number of Fellows shall amount to or exceed Twenty-five, exclusively of the Chancellor and Vice-Chancellor for the time being, it shall be lawful for Us, Our Heirs and Successors, from time to time to appoint a new Fellow or New Fellows under Our Sign Manual.

13. AND WE FURTHER WILL AND

ORDAIN, that until the number of Fellows of the University, who shall have been selected from a List of persons to be nominated by Convocation under the power hereinafter contained, shall amount to or exceed nine, every second Fellow, or one out of every two Fellows, who shall be thereafter appointed by Us, Our Heirs and Successors, shall be chosen from a List of three persons to be nominated by Convocation under the power hereinafter contained; and that when and so soon as there shall be nine Fellows for the time being who shall have been so selected, that thenceforth every fourth Fellow, or one out of every four Fellows who shall be thereafter appointed by Us, Our Heirs and Successors, shall be chosen out of a List of three persons to be nominated by Convocation as aforesaid. 14. AND WE FURTHER WILL AND ORDAIN, that if at any time, by death or otherwise, the number of the Fellows of the University shall be reduced below the number of Twenty-five exclusive of the Chancellor and Vice-Chancellor for the time being, then and in such case, and so often as the same shall happen, the Members of the Senate shall, as soon as conveniently may be, at a Meeting to be holden for that purpose, of which due notice shall be given, elect Twelve or more fit and proper persons to be Fellows in addition to the then remaining Fellows; to the end, that by means of such election the number of Thirty-six Fellows of such University may be completed, exclusive of the Chancellor and Vice-Chancellor of the University; but at least one-fourth of the whole number of Fellows who shall be so elected by the Senate shall be chosen from a List of persons to be nominated by Convocation, such List to contain three times the number of persons to be selected therefrom. 15. AND WE FURTHER WILL AND ORDAIN, that a Register of the Graduates constituting for the time being the Convocation of the said University, shall be kept by such Officer and in such manner as the Senate of the said University shall from time to time appoint and direct, which Register shall be conclusive evidence that any person whose name shall appear thereon at the time of his claiming to vote in Convocation, is so entitled to vote, and that any person whose name shall not appear thereon at the time of his claiming to vote in Convocation, is not so entitled to vote. And We further ordain and direct, that such Graduates, present and future, shall pay such reasonable annual fees in that behalf, and at such times and with such liberty to compound for the same, as the said Senate, with the concurrence of Convocation, and with the approbation of the Commissioners of Our Treasury, shall from time to time direct. And that the said Senate may make such Bye-laws and Regulations as aforesaid, for taking off the name of any such Graduate as aforesaid for nonpayment of such fees, and for reinstating such name on such terms as they shall by such Bye-laws prescribe in that behalf. 17. AND WE RESERVE to Ourselves, Our Heirs and Successors, to be the Visitor of the said University of London, with authority to do all those things which pertain to Visitors, as often as to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, shall seem meet. 18. AND WE FURTHER WILL AND ORDAIN, that the Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, and Fellows, for the time being, shall have the entire management of and superintendence over the affairs, concerns, and property of the said University; and in all cases unprovided for by this Our Charter, it shall be lawful for the Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, and Fellows to act in such manner as shall appear to them best calculated to promote the purposes intended by the University. And the said Chancellor, Vice-

And all such Bye-laws and Regulations, when reduced into writing, and after the Common Seal of the University shall have been affixed thereto, shall be binding upon all persons Members thereof, and all Candidates for Degrees to be conferred by the same; all such Bye-laws and Regulations having been first submitted to one of Our Principal Secretaries of State, and approved of and countersigned by him. Provided always, that it shall not be lawful for the said Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, and Fellows, to impose on any person any compulsory religious examination or test.

19. AND WE FURTHER WILL AND ORDAIN, that all questions which shall come before the Senate shall be decided by the majority of the Members present, and the Chairman at any such Meeting shall have a vote, and in case of an equality of votes a second or casting vote. That no question shall be decided at any Meeting unless the Chancellor or Vice-Chancellor and Five Fellows, or, in the absence of the Chancellor and Vice-Chancellor, unless Six Fellows at the least shall be present at the time of such decision. That at every Meeting of the Senate, the Chancellor, or, in his absence, the Vice-Chancellor, shall preside as Chairman; or, in the absence of both, a chairman shall be chosen by the Members present, or the major part of them.

20. AND WE FURTHER WILL AND ORDAIN, that the said Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, and Fellows for the time being shall have full power from time to time to appoint, and, as they shall see occasion, to remove, all Examiners, Officers, and Servants of the said University.

21. 22. AND WE FURTHER WILL AND ORDAIN, that once at least in every year, and as often as they may think fit, the Senate shall convene a Meeting of Convocation.

23. 24. Provided always, that after the first of such Extraordinary Meetings no such Extraordinary Meeting shall be convened in pursuance of the clause lastly hereinbefore contained, until the expiration of Three Calendar Months from the last of such Extraordinary Meetings: Provided also, that no matter shall be discussed at any such Extraordinary Meeting, except the matter for the discussion whereof it was convened.

26. Notice of the Meetings of Convocation shall be given by advertisement or in such other manner as the Senate shall from time to time determine. Whenever one of the principal Secretaries of State shall notify to the Senate that We, Our Heirs or Successors, are desirous of appointing a Fellow, or a number of Fellows, and of having submitted to Us, Our Heirs or Successors, a List of persons from which to select such Fellow or Fellows, then the Senate shall, as soon thereafter as conveniently may be, convene a Meeting of Convocation; and such Meeting shall nominate three persons not being Fellows if one Fellow is to be appointed, or three times as many persons not being Fellows as there shall be Fellows to be so appointed, if there shall be more than one Fellow to be appointed. 27. AND WE FURTHER WILL AND ORDAIN, that a person shall be appointed by the Senate to preside at the First Meeting of Convocation, and that at such Meeting a standing Chairman of Convocation shall be chosen by the Members present, or the major part of them. 28. That the Office of Chairman of Convocation shall be an Office held for the term of three years, unless sooner determined by death, resignation, or otherwise: but the Chairman shall be eligible for re-election. That within the year preceding the expiration of every term of the said Office, or in case of the death or resignation of the Chairman, or any Vacancy of the said Office, the Members of Convocation present at any Meeting duly convened, or the major part of them, shall elect a Chairman, who, if elected during the term of Office of any Chairman, shall hold Office three years after the expiration of the tenure of Office of such Chairman, and if elected during a vacancy, then till the expiration of the third year after the commencement of the vacancy. That if from any cause no Chairman is elected to succeed any Chairman for the time being, then such last-mentioned Chairman shall continue in Office until his successor is appointed. 29. That if the Chairman shall be absent at the time of the Meeting of Convocation, or if there shall be a vacancy in the Office, then, before proceeding to business, the Members of Convocation then present, or the major part of them, shall elect a Chairman, who shall hold Office during such Meeting only. 30. AND WE FURTHER WILL AND ORDAIN, that all Bye-laws, Regulations, and Standing Orders made by the University created by Our said Letters Patent of the ninth day of April in the twenty-first year of Our reign, or the convocation thereof, and in force at or immediately before the granting of this Our Charter, shall, until they shall be altered or repealed, remain in force as Bye-laws, Regulations, and Standing Orders of the University created by this Our Charter, or the Convocation thereof, respectively; and such last-mentioned University is hereinafter referred to as the University. 8. AND WE FURTHER WILL AND ORDAIN, that the Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, and Fellows for the time being shall constitute the Senate of the University. 9. AND WE FURTHER WILL AND ORDAIN, that whenever a vacancy shall occur in the Office of Chancellor of the said University, either by death, resignation, or otherwise, We, Our Heirs or Successors, will, under Our or Their sign manual, nominate a fit and proper person to be the Chancellor instead of the Chancellor occasioning such vacancy; and in the mean time the duties of the Chancellor shall be performed by the Vice-Chancellor, or Fellow performing the duties of Vice-Chancellor under the provision hereinafter contained; and the Vice-Chancellor, or Fellow so performing the duties of Vice-Chancellor, and Fellows shall have all such powers as are hereby given to the Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, and Fellows. 10. AND WE FURTHER WILL AND ORDAIN, that the seniority of the Fellows nominated by this Our Charter shall be determined by the order in which their names appear in this Charter; and the seniority of Fellows hereafter appointed or elected at the same time, by the order in which their names shall appear in the instrument of appointment or instrument or certificate of election. 11. AND WE FURTHER WILL AND ORDAIN, that if at any time, by death, resignation, or otherwise, a vacancy shall be created in the body of the Fellows, then, and so often as the same shall happen, new Fellows shall be appointed in manner herein provided, so that the number of Thirty-six Fellows may be kept complete, exclusive of the Chancellor and Vice-Chancellor for the time being. 12. AND WE FURTHER WILL AND ORDAIN, that as to all vacancies which shall from time to time occur while the number of Fellows shall amount to or exceed twenty-five, exclusively of the Chancellor and Vice-Chancellor for the time being, it shall be lawful for Us, Our Heirs and Successors, from time to time to appoint a new Fellow or new Fellows under Our Sign Manual. 13. Provided always, that no Graduate whose name has been taken off or excluded from the Register of Convocation, under the Bye-laws or Regulations of Our said Charter of the ninth day of April in the twenty-first year of Our reign, shall be a Member of Convocation until his name shall be restored pursuant to the Bye-laws and Regulations for the time being existing under this Our Charter. 16. AND WE FURTHER WILL AND ORDAIN, that a Register of the Graduates constituting for the time being the Convocation of the said University shall be kept by such Officer and in such manner as the Senate of the said University shall from time to time appoint and direct, which Register shall be conclusive evidence that any person whose name shall appear thereon at the time of his claiming to vote in Convocation is so entitled to vote, and that any person whose name shall not appear thereon at the time of his claiming to vote in Convocation is not so entitled to vote. AND WE FURTHER ORDAIN AND DIRECT, that such Graduates, present and future, shall pay such reasonable annual fees in that behalf, and at such times and with such liberty to compound for the same, as the said Senate, with the concurrence of Convocation and with the approbation of the Commissioners of Our Treasury, shall from time to time direct: And that the said Senate may make such Bye-laws and Regulations as aforesaid for taking off the name of any such Graduate as aforesaid for non-payment of such fees, and for reinstating such name on such terms as they shall by such Bye-laws prescribe in that behalf. 17. AND WE RESERVE to Ourselves, Our Heirs and Successors to be the Visitor of the said University of London, with authority to do all those things which pertain to Visitors, as often as to Us, Our

And all such Bye-laws and Regulations, when reduced into writing, and after the Common Seal of the University shall have been affixed thereto, shall be binding upon all persons Members thereof, and all Candidates for Degrees to be conferred by the same; all such Bye-laws and Regulations having been first submitted to one of Our Principal Secretaries of State, and approved of and countersigned by him. Provided always, that it shall not be lawful for the said Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, and Fellows to impose on any person any compulsory Religious examination or test. 19. AND WE FURTHER WILL AND ORDAIN, that all questions which shall come before the Senate shall be decided by the majority of the Members present, and the Chairman at any such Meeting shall have a vote, and in case of an equality of votes a second or casting vote. That if Twenty or more Members of Convocation shall, by writing under their hands, require the Chairman for the time being of Convocation, to be appointed as hereinafter prescribed, to convene an Extraordinary Meeting of Convocation, and such requisition shall express the object of the Meeting required to be called, it shall be lawful for the said Chairman, if in his discretion he shall think fit so to do, to convene a Meeting of Convocation. 24. Provided always, that after the first of such Extraordinary Meetings no such Extraordinary Meeting shall be convened in pursuance of the clause lastly hereinbefore contained, until the expiration of Three Calendar Months from the last of such Extraordinary Meetings: Provided also, that no matter shall be discussed at any such Extraordinary Meeting, except the matter for the discussion whereof it was convened. 25. The Senate shall provide a proper place for the Meeting of Convocation; and the proceedings of any Meeting of Convocation shall be transmitted to the Senate at the next following Meeting of the Senate. 26. Notice of the Meetings of Convocation shall be given by advertisement, or in such other manner as the Senate shall from time to time determine. That if from any cause no Chairman is elected to succeed any Chairman for the time being, then such last-mentioned Chairman shall continue in Office until his successor is appointed. 29. (2) Persons who have passed the examinations required for a degree in some University approved as aforesaid;

(3) Persons who have obtained from the University of Cambridge a certificate stating that they have satisfied the examiners in a Tripos Examination qualifying as a Final Examination for a first degree;

(4) Persons who have passed or obtained Honours at the Second Public Examination of the University of Oxford provided that they have also either passed or

113. Provided also that the Senate may admit graduates of or persons who have passed the examinations required for a degree in other Universities approved by it for that purpose as Internal Students and as candidates for any of the higher degrees (except in Medicine and Surgery) without their having previously taken any lower degree.

obtained Honours at the First Public Examination or have passed such other Examination or Examinations as under the provisions of the University of Oxford are accepted as statutablely equivalent thereto.

114. The University may also grant any certificates of proficiency in any subjects of study to any Students of the University or persons recommended for that purpose by the Board to promote the Extension of University Teaching upon their satisfying such tests by examination or otherwise and fulfilling such conditions as may be in that behalf prescribed.

115. Every certificate of the result of any examination and every diploma shall state whether the person obtaining such certificate or diploma has passed as an Internal or as an External Student or otherwise.

EXAMINATIONS.

116. Every candidate for admission as a Student of the University shall pass such entrance or matriculation examination or fulfil such other tests of fitness to be admitted as a Student as may be from time to time prescribed.

117. The examinations for matriculation shall be in such subjects as may be from time to time prescribed and the Senate may make provision for holding separate matriculation examinations for different classes of Students having regard to the courses of study which the students propose to follow.

118. Subject to any order of the Senate there shall be a Board to advise the Senate upon all questions relating to the admission of Students. The said Board shall consist of the Chancellor the Vice-Chancellor and the Chairman of Convocation and of members annually nominated by the Senate provided that one-third of the members so nominated shall be members of the Academic Council and another third shall be members of the Council for External Students appointed by Convocation.

119. The Senate shall make provision for holding intermediate examinations for Internal Students or External Students in such subjects and at such periods and under such conditions as may be prescribed and the Senate may if in its discretion it think fit to do so make arrangements to hold any intermediate examination or some part thereof for the Students of any School of the University jointly with the Governing Body of such School.

*120. The examinations for a degree shall be held at such times and at such place or places as may be prescribed but no Student shall be admitted to the final examination for a degree until the expiration of at least three years after matriculation unless the Senate in special cases or special classes of cases otherwise determine.

121. The examinations for the several degrees shall be in such subjects and shall represent such standard of knowledge as may be from time to time prescribed and more than one examination may be appointed or different tests of proficiency may be required for any one degree having regard to the several subjects of study for which that degree may be obtained. Amongst the tests of proficiency which may be required in any branch of study involving practical work in a laboratory workshop or otherwise shall be included the inspection or such other evidence as may be prescribed of such work.

122. Unless it be otherwise prescribed generally or specially as to any particular subject of study separate examinations (both intermediate and final) shall be held for Internal and External Students respectively but the Senate shall provide that the degrees conferred upon both classes of Students shall represent as far as possible the same standard of knowledge and attainments. The draft of every Byelaw Regulation or Standing Order proposed to be made by the Senate for the purpose of uniting Internal and External Students in the same examination shall be communicated to Convocation the Academic Council and the Council for External Students respectively and a reasonable time shall be allowed to each of those bodies before such draft is passed to make representations thereon to the Senate.

123. The Senate may make arrangements with the Royal College of Physicians of London and the Royal College of Surgeons of England or either of them to conduct jointly with the Senate examinations in such portions of the subjects included in the course of study for a medical degree as may be agreed upon between the Senate and those Colleges or either of them and may also make similar arrangements with other corporations and institutions holding professional examinations in subjects included in other courses of study.

120. The examinations for a degree shall be held at such times and at such place or places as may be prescribed but no Student shall be admitted to the final examination for a degree until the expiration of at least three years after matriculation unless the Senate in special cases otherwise determine.

124. The Examiners shall be appointed by the Senate after receiving reports of the several Boards of Studies. In each subject of examination the Senate shall if practicable appoint at least one Examiner who is not a Teacher of the University.

INTERNAL STUDENTS.

*125. Except as hereinafter provided no person shall be admitted to a first degree in the University as an Internal Student unless and until he has completed an approved course of study comprising all the subjects in which he presents himself and extending over not less than three years. Such three years shall be calculated from a date not earlier than matriculation unless the Senate shall either generally by regulation or in special cases allow the same to be calculated from a date not exceeding four months before matriculation. Any person who has passed the intermediate examination before he is registered as an Internal Student may be allowed to take the final examination for the first degree before the end of a three years' course provided that subsequently to passing the intermediate examination he shall have attended for two years an approved course of study for the final examination. If he passes that examination he shall be admitted to the degree without further examination but not until he shall have completed three years of study as an Internal Student by attending subsequently to passing the final examination a further approved course of study and not unless the Authorities of the School or Institution at which such course is held have certified that his attendance and progress have been satisfactory. Provided that

(1) A person who has presented himself for a final examination for a first degree as an Internal Student and has failed may be permitted to present himself on a subsequent occasion for such final examination as an Internal Student in subjects other than those in which he presented himself on the first occasion after such further course if any as the Senate shall generally by regulation or in special cases determine.

purpose subsequently to the passing of the intermediate examination may be accepted in lieu of an approved course of study taken in this University subject to such regulations as the Senate may from time to time prescribe.

For the purposes of this Statute the date of matriculation shall be taken to be the first day of the matriculation examination at which the candidate passed or in respect of which he was registered.

126. Courses of study qualifying for admission to the examinations for the several degrees shall be from time to time prescribed for the guidance of Internal Students. In thus prescribing courses of study the Senate while providing in each case for an academic training of adequate breadth and duration shall endeavour to allow the Students a wide option in the choice of study and the Senate may for such reasons as seem to it sufficient permit Students during their academic career to modify their courses of study and may in special cases grant exemptions in respect of such courses. Or the Governing Body of any School of the University may from time to time submit to the Senate for its approval courses of study which such Governing Body is prepared to provide within that School.

*127. Every Internal Student before being admitted to the final examination for a first degree as an Internal Student shall produce to the officer appointed for the purpose certificates of having pursued his approved course of study extending over the full period of not less than three years. Such certificates shall be signed by or on behalf of the Governing Body of the School if and so far as his course of study has been pursued in a School and in every other case by or on behalf of the Teachers under whom it has been pursued. No certificate shall be accepted from any Teacher except in the subject for which he has been appointed or recognised as hereinbefore provided.

Any Graduate of the University who shall have taken a degree as an External Student may be admitted as an Internal Student to the examination for a higher degree within the purview of the same Faculty on completing a prescribed course of study in a School or Schools or under a Teacher or Teachers of the University or may in place of the whole or any part of such examination submit the results of study or research subject to the provisions hereinbefore contained. Persons applying for admission as candidates under this Statute after the first day of September 1911 must produce evidence of having passed a general examination approved in each case by the University for the purpose or conducted by the University in the subject in which they desire to proceed to a higher degree or in a cognate subject.

130. No disability shall be imposed upon any Internal Student by reason of the approved course of study pursued by him being or having been pursued in the evening only.

REPORT TO ACCOMPANY STATUTES AND REGULATIONS MADE BY THE COMMISSIONERS APPOINTED UNDER THE UNIVERSITY OF LONDON ACT, 1898, TOGETHER WITH AN APPENDIX OF CORRESPONDENCE.

TO THE QUEEN'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.

We, the Commissioners appointed under the University of London Act, 1898, have in accordance with the provisions of the said Act made Statutes and Regulations for the University of London, which we humbly submit for Your Majesty's gracious consideration.

We should explain that, according to our view of the construction of the Act, "Statutes" mean provisions of a permanent character relating to the constitution of the University, and admitting of repeal or alteration only by similar Statutes made by the Senate and submitted to Parliament, and afterwards assented to by Your Majesty; while "Regulations" mean provisions recommended by us for carrying the Statutes into effect, and open to repeal or alteration hereafter by the Senate of the University without those formalities.

1. Before commencing our work we invited and received representations, as well from the Senate and Convocation of the University as from other bodies and persons. And in order to obtain a full expression of outside opinion we confidentially communicated the first draft of the Statutes proposed by us to the Senate and Convocation and other bodies and persons interested therein. In this way we have received many representations and much valuable assistance and advice. We have endeavoured, so far as possible, to give effect to those representations, but as might be expected they were not always consistent with one another, and in some instances provisions have been suggested to us which, in our opinion, were beyond the powers entrusted to us.

2. We have also endeavoured to follow as closely as possible the recommendations contained in the Report of the Commissioners appointed to consider the Draft Charter for the proposed Gresham University in London, subject to the modifications contained in the Schedule to the Act. But in two important instances we have departed from those recommendations. We have not included amongst the Schools of the University any of the four Schools of Music mentioned in the Report, and to our great regret we have not succeeded in forming at present any effective Faculty of Laws. By the term "Faculty" we understand and mean "A body of persons charged with the teaching of a group of subjects in the University."

We found that neither the Royal College of Music (which is a body incorporated by Charter with the power of conferring degrees), nor the Royal Academy of Music, was willing to become a School of the University except upon conditions which it was not in our power to accept. In these circumstances we did not think it expedient to make either Trinity College or the Guildhall School of Music a School of the University. But we have included a certain number of the teachers at the Royal College of Music, the Royal Academy of Music, and Trinity College amongst the Recognised Teachers of the University, so that Internal Students of the University will have the opportunity of pursuing their course of study at each of these institutions.

3. In fulfilment of our statutory duty we invited the four Inns of Court to become Schools of the University, either separately or as jointly represented by the Council of Legal Education appointed by the four Inns, and also to recommend teachers for recognition by us as Teachers of the University. All the Inns of Court, however, decline to take any part in the University. The correspondence on the subject is appended to this Report. We have received an intimation that the Incorporated Law Society of the United Kingdom has determined to exercise the power of appointing two representatives upon the Senate in accordance with the provisions of the Act.

It may be useful to summarise the result of the previous inquiries affecting the position of the Inns of Court as places of legal education. In the year 1846 a Select Committee of the House of Commons was appointed to inquire into the then state of legal education in England and Ireland. The Report of that Committee contains a great deal of useful information, much of which is applicable to the present day. The recommendations contained in the Report were directed chiefly to the improvement in the professional education of practising lawyers, and have to a certain extent been carried into effect by the Inns of Court. In the year 1854 a Royal Commission was appointed to inquire into (amongst other things) the arrangements of the Inns of Court for promoting the study of the Law and Jurisprudence. Vice-Chancellor Page Wood (afterwards Lord Hatherley) was the chairman of the Commission, and amongst its members were Mr Justice Coleridge, Sir Alexander Cockburn (then Attorney-General and afterwards Lord Chief Justice of England), and Sir Richard Bethell (then Solicitor-General and afterwards Lord Westbury). The Report recommended the constitution of a University with a power of conferring degrees in Law, of which the constituent members should be "The Chancellor, Barristers-at-Law, and Masters of Law," and that a Senate consisting of thirty-two members should be elected by the Inns of Court. In the year 1875 the late Lord Selborne introduced a Bill into the House of Lords for the formation of a School of Law. It was read a second time and referred to a Committee of the whole House, but was never passed.

It is unnecessary to point out the value of a philosophical study of the principles of law or jurisprudence, not only to the professional lawyer, but as a part of a liberal education. Within the limits of Your Majesty's dominions almost every civilised system of law may be found in active operation and regulating the legal relations of Your Majesty's subjects. Barristers may be called upon to serve as judges in India and the Colonies, or to argue appeals from all parts of the Empire before the Judicial Committee of Your Majesty's Privy Council, and may even hope as members of that Committee to assist in advising Your Majesty on the disposal of such appeals. To the legislator, the diplomatist, and the Colonial Governor, to the officers of Your Majesty's naval and military forces, to the magistrates and others who have to administer the law and perform similar public duties, some knowledge of the great principles which underlie all systems of law would seem to be invaluable. Nor is it necessary to point out how lamentably the provision for obtaining such knowledge, or for the study of law as a science, or as part of a liberal education, falls short of that to be found in other countries, such as Germany, France, and the United States of America.

It appears from the evidence given before the Gresham Commissioners that much has been done by the Inns of Court for the improvement of the legal education of their students since the Reports of the Select Committee of the House of Commons of 1846 and of the Royal Commission of 1855. In 1872 Consolidated Regulations of the four Inns were passed, which prescribed that after a certain date no person should be called to the Bar who had not satisfied the examiners appointed by the Council of Legal Education. And in 1892 the teaching staff of the Council of Legal Education was redistributed and enlarged, and the curriculum of study was extended. A Board of Studies has also been created. Recently (it is understood) the lectures have been thrown open on certain conditions to persons who are not students of the Inns. But according to the evidence given by Mr. Crackanthorpe the system is not satisfactory. It is an attempt to do more than the Council can well perform. The real education afforded is of a professional character only, and in the opinion of the witness there are no means in London of obtaining any instruction in what he terms non-professional law. We think, however, that the work of the Council is capable of extension, and it would form a starting-point for the creation of a Faculty in Laws worthy of a University in this great and wealthy Metropolis.

The Council of University College has represented to us that law and jurisprudence have been taught at that College ever since its foundation, and that for several years Professorships have been held in Jurisprudence, Constitutional Law and History, Roman Law, and Indian Law, in addition to the endowed Quain Professorship of Comparative Law. It does not, however, appear that the lectures of these Professors are largely attended. Some teaching in law is also given at King's College. But we are not of opinion that the Teachers in law, whether in connection with the Incorporated Law Society or at these Colleges, are alone sufficient for the formation of a Faculty of Laws.

We the more regret the conclusion to which we have been compelled to come because the University of London is honourably distinguished by being the first University in this country which conferred degrees in Laws after and as the result of adequate examinations. At the present time there are about five hundred Bachelors of Laws and seventy Doctors of Laws on the Register. We cannot but feel that the reconstitution of the University will be incomplete unless and until an adequate and effective Faculty of Laws has been established. The venerable antiquity, honourable traditions, and large resources of the Inns of Court, as well as the great reputation of many of their members past and present, point them out as the proper bodies to assist in the formation of such a Faculty for the study of law professional and non-professional; and we believe that without their co-operation the Faculty cannot be effectively organised. We submit to Your Majesty's gracious consideration whether any further inquiries shall be made or steps be taken to secure such co-operation.

4. In Section 80 of the Statutes we have introduced the words "the Senate shall use its best endeavours whenever practicable to secure common courses of instruction for Internal Medical Students in the preliminary and intermediate portion of their studies under Appointed or Recognised Teachers at one or more centres." We have been led to do so by the following considerations.

Before commencing his strictly professional studies in the wards of a hospital the student of Medicine is required to have studied and in most cases to have passed an examination in certain introductory sciences, namely, physics, chemistry, general biology, anatomy, and physiology. These are sciences which cannot be adequately studied without practical instruction in a laboratory, dissecting-room, or museum. At the present time each of the Metropolitan Medical Schools, besides supplying professional instruction in the wards of its hospitals, affords more or less complete teaching in each of the above sciences; and this practice has prevailed for many years.

In the second part of their Report (page xlii.) the Gresham Commissioners made the following recommendation:—"It is very desirable that with regard, at least, to the smaller medical schools the teaching of physics, chemistry, biology, anatomy, physiology, pharmacology, and materia medica, pathology, hygiene and public health, and forensic medicine, should be concentrated into one or two institutions. At some of the medical schools the number of students attending these several classes is very small, and there is often great difficulty in obtaining teachers properly qualified for the work. As a rule the best men are not anxious to accept these appointments. There is little or no remuneration or encouragement to exertion. But if the several classes in these subjects could be fused together, the individual classes so resulting would be of sufficient magnitude and importance to secure the services of the best teachers. It can hardly be doubted that considerable improvement in medical education would result from this arrangement, while by the saving of time and expense and concentration of force the several schools would be set free from what must now be a burdensome weight, and would be enabled to devote all their energies to the teaching of the clinical subjects of medicine and surgery, which in all their various branches have largely developed of late years. If such a plan as this were adopted, the further question would be considered whether each of the several subjects should not be entrusted to more than a single teacher. The classes would probably be large enough and the remuneration sufficient to admit of this division of labour."

We have received from various quarters expressions of opinion on the one hand opposed to and on the other hand in favour of this recommendation of the Gresham Commissioners.

In support of making no change in the existing practice the following arguments have been used. It has been urged that the teaching of these sciences ought to be conducted with the object of preparing the student for his later professional studies, and not of educating him for a scientific career. So long as these studies are closely attached to a hospital, and are carried on under the immediate direction of teachers in charge of more strictly professional studies, there is no danger of this object being disregarded. But such a danger would arise if these introductory studies were carried on in an independent centre free from hospital control. Further, in every Medical School great benefits result from continuous personal intercourse between teachers and students, and from the establishment of an esprit de corps. These benefits would be greatly diminished if the student did not join a hospital until after a considerable portion of his studies had been completed, and if his connection therewith were thus proportionately shortened.

The advocates of concentrating the teaching of these introductory sciences are numerous, and prominent among them are many of those younger members of the several hospital staffs who bear the greater part of the burden of medical tuition. They point out, in the first place, that the adequate teaching of the sciences in question entails heavy expenses, especially for the provision of properly equipped laboratories and other accommodation. The provision thus demanded becomes every year more elaborate and the outlay greater. A system of concentration would, they contend, obviously furnish at the same expenditure far better accommodation than is afforded by the present system. At no one School, as a matter of fact, is the accommodation wholly adequate in respect of the sciences in question, and in many Schools it falls very far short of this standard. In the case of some of the smaller Schools, the number of students needing instruction in these sciences is so small that the fees paid by the students for the courses of study are insufficient to defray the expenses. The maintenance of the instruction thus becomes a heavy tax on the general resources of the School, and naturally tends to an undesirable economy of accommodation and equipment. Yet the total amount of money actually spent at the various Schools, if expended on a system of concentration, would probably provide accommodation and equipment leaving little to be desired. In this respect it must be borne in mind that the Provincial Schools of Medicine, supported as they are in many cases by generous endowments representative of local sentiment, are in the completeness of their equipment rapidly outstripping the Metropolitan Schools. If the latter are to maintain themselves against this competition, a much more liberal equipment than now obtains in any one of them will have to be secured.

It is urged, in the second place, that the sciences in question are not, and indeed cannot be, taught at the present day, as they were formerly, by men looking forward to the pursuit of a medical career. They are now taught, and must perhaps to a still greater extent in the future be taught, by men who propose to devote themselves to a career in the sciences which they teach. But owing to the multiplicity of posts under the present system the emoluments of each post are, in most cases at least, too small to support the holder of it. These posts are regarded as stepping-stones to other posts, or as mere adjuncts to other duties. The result is that the teachers of these sciences in the Medical Schools are called away when they rise to eminence, or, if they remain, bestow only a portion of their energy upon the Medical School to which they continue to belong. The teaching in the Medical Schools suffers under this system, more especially in all that relates to the encouragement of research. Moreover, the multiplicity of posts and the smallness of the emoluments lead, more particularly in the smaller Schools, to the undesirable practice of the same teacher attempting to teach two or more branches of knowledge which cannot advantageously be taught by the same person. This depreciation of teaching and this lack of opportunity for research form a real and pressing evil, far outweighing any danger that would be likely to arise from any diminution in the practical direction of these introductory studies. Indeed, it is maintained that such a danger is illusory, and that from a system of concentration in which the teaching was directed by eminent and experienced men better and more practical results might be expected than from the present system, under which the teaching is often entrusted to young men whose enthusiasm for their subject is apt to lead them to disregard all other interests.

In the third place, it has been urged that were the teaching of these introductory sciences concentrated at one or more centres the laboratories and appliances now used for them, and not only the laboratories but also some of the teaching power, might be used to supply another and a pressing need. The development of medical science in the present day requires that each properly equipped hospital should be provided with what are called clinical laboratories, in which elaborate microscopic, chemical, and other investigations may be carried on in close proximity with the wards. In this provision the Metropolitan Medical Schools are markedly falling behind the Schools, not only of the Continent and of the United States, but even of the English provinces. The concentration proposed would allow the laboratories now used for preliminary and intermediate studies to be employed as clinical laboratories; it would improve the teaching in those studies; and it would at the same time tend to remove what is rapidly becoming a reproach to the Medical Schools in London.

Weighing these and other arguments which have been brought forward on one side or the other, we have come to the conclusion that some kind of concentration is desirable, and we should have preferred to have ourselves framed Statutes for at once effecting it. But we found from the representations made to us on behalf of the Medical Schools that there was not at present any such consensus of opinion in regard to the mode in which concentration should be carried out as would enable us to do so. In these circumstances such a step would involve the consideration of details which lie outside our province, and the adoption of a course of action which exceeds our powers. It must rest with the Senate of the reconstituted University to deal with the whole of this question, and we have empowered and recommended the Senate to proceed as soon as may be in the desired direction.

The sciences named by the Gresham Commissioners as those in which they thought concentration of teaching to be desirable may be divided into three or four groups— (1) The sciences of physics, chemistry, and general biology, partaking as they do to some extent of the character of general education, form one group, and are spoken of in the Statutes as “preliminary studies.” (2) The sciences of anatomy and physiology, although they exist independently of the medical profession, are closely allied to that profession, and form a second group spoken of in the Statutes as “intermediate Studies.” (3) A third group, which may to some extent be described as belonging to “intermediate studies,” is supplied by the sciences of pathology, that is to say, general pathology including certain departments of bacteriology, and pharmacology. These sciences resemble those of the two former groups in so far as the study of them on the one hand requires adequate laboratory accommodation, and on the other hand can be pursued apart from a hospital; but they are of a more strictly professional character. (4) The science of hygiene and all studies relating to public health may be regarded as a fourth group, which would, perhaps, best be described as ancillary rather than as introductory to medical studies. In some respects this group forms an independent branch of study, and ought to be so treated.

The advantages of concentration are greater and the difficulties and disadvantages less in the first group than in the second and in the second than in the third. Indeed, the arguments in favour of concentration in the case of the first and second groups of studies are so strong that we feel very confident that the Senate will be able at no distant date to give effect to our recommendations in regard to one or both of these groups. In recognising teachers of the University we have accordingly thought it expedient to place the teachers of these two groups of subjects at Medical Schools in a separate list. We have recognised them only “provisionally,” in the desire to facilitate the work of the Senate in carrying out a scheme of concentration.

In so doing, however, our sole object is to give emphasis to our opinion that concentration in these groups ought to be effected without delay; and it is not to be inferred that in our judgment concentration in the other groups is undesirable or impracticable.

5. We have in the Statutes recommended the formation of two new Faculties, viz., in Engineering and in Economics and Political Science (including Commerce and Industry). Persons interested in those subjects from whom we received representations were on the whole unfavourable to the granting of separate degrees for them. We have therefore provided that the students in those subjects shall proceed to degrees in Science, but that every diploma of such degree shall state that it has been conferred for proficiency in Engineering, or in Economics and Political Science, as the case may be.

6. We regret that we have not seen our way to admit any of the Training Colleges in London or its neighbourhood as Schools of the University. The Gresham Commissioners said in their Report (p. xxiii) "that the peculiar function of these institutions necessarily gives a larger prominence in their work to elementary matter and to training for elementary teaching than is consistent with their holding the position of Schools of the University," and they added that it would be difficult to reconcile with that position their necessary subordination to the requirements of a Government department. We have not had any evidence before us that any such change has taken place in the character and functions of these institutions since the date of the Report as would justify us in departing from the Commissioners' recommendation. But we have not been unmindful of the claims of Pedagogy upon our attention, and we agree with the Gresham Commissioners in recognising the beneficial influence likely to be exercised upon those who are to be engaged in teaching, whether elementary or secondary, by the opportunity of study and intellectual intercourse which a University affords, and more especially by systematic courses of training such as are now provided in many other Universities both in this country and abroad. We have been urged to establish a Faculty of Pedagogy, but we are not prepared to propose such an extension of Faculties as would be involved in this step. We have, however, included some of the teachers in the Training Colleges amongst the Recognised Teachers of the University, and we have recommended the formation of a Board of Studies for the Theory, Practice, and History of Education. We entertain the hope that the University will be enabled to establish adequate courses of lectures and create a professorship in his important subject.

In conclusion, we cannot but feel that Statutes and Regulations will not make a living University. Large funds will be required for the remuneration of University Professors and Lecturers, and the provision and maintenance of libraries, museums, laboratories, and workshops. It is not for us to suggest the source from which these funds shall be derived. But we may venture to express a hope that Parliament, no less than the municipal authorities of London, will recognise the claims of the reconstituted University, and that national and municipal resources may be supplanted by the private munificence of those who desire a University worthy of the capital of the British Empire.

We desire to express our sense of the valuable services of our Secretary, Mr. Bailey Saunders, whose knowledge of the subject and careful attention and general courtesy and tact have materially assisted our labours.

APPENDIX.

CORRESPONDENCE BETWEEN THE COMMISSION AND THE INNS OF COURT.

The following letter was addressed by the Secretary of the Commission to the respective Treasurers of the four Inns :—

London University Commission,
32, Abingdon Street, Westminster, S.W., 21st June, 1899.

SIR,

I am directed by the Commissioners appointed by the University of London Act, 1898, to inform you that in compliance with the directions of the Act they are prepared to name the several Inns of Court Schools of the University either collectively or separately. They will, for instance, if they are so desired, name the Council of Legal Education as a School on behalf of the Inns of Court. But whether the Inns of Court shall be named either in one form or another depends, of course, upon their consent; and I am directed to express the hope on the part of the Commissioners that the Inns of Court will give that consent, and thereby materially assist the great educational work in which the Commissioners are engaged under the authority of Parliament. Indeed, they cannot but feel that without the co-operation of the Inns of Court the formation of a strong School of Law in London, whether for educational or for professional objects, will be rendered extremely difficult.

The Commissioners have some reason to believe that much misunderstanding prevails as to the position which the Inns of Court will occupy if they become a School of the University. The Commissioners do not ask for any endowment or contribution towards the funds of the University. The Inns of Court will, of course, maintain their own school as they do at present, and they will retain the absolute control over the appointment of their own professors, readers, and lecturers, and over the regulation of the studies of their students, subject only to this observation—that if any of their students desire to proceed to a degree in the University, they will be required to pursue the general course of study laid down by the Senate on the advice of the Board of Studies in Law. But, inasmuch as members of the Inns of Court and their teachers will naturally form the largest element in the composition of the Board of Studies, even this moderate requirement will inevitably be largely in the control of the Inns of Court themselves. As regards the examinations, the Inns of Court must in any event retain absolute power over the conditions upon which they will call their students to the Bar. It is hoped, indeed, that the Inns of Court may ultimately see their way to accepting the result of the examinations conducted by the University of London, as well, perhaps, as that of the examinations of the older Universities, as a sufficient test of general proficiency in legal knowledge apart from strictly professional training. But this, again, is within their own discretion. The Commissioners need scarcely point out the great incentive and assistance which the Inns of Court have it in their power to offer to the formation in London of a School of Law, such as exists in the Universities of Continental countries and the United States, the want of which is not unfrequently made a subject of reproach to this country. Nor need they enlarge, when addressing your Honourable Society, on the importance of the study of the Law as a part of a liberal education—not only to professional lawyers, but to all men engaged in legislation or in the public service as well as in other pursuits.

The Commissioners also desire to recognise as Teachers of the University whether the Inns of Court become a School of the University or not, a certain number of the teachers engaged in the educational work of the Inns of Court, and they would be obliged by the assistance of the Council of Legal Education in recommending the teachers who should be so recognised.

I am to add that the Commissioners will be pleased, if desired by your Inn, to forward you a draft of the first instalment of their Statutes which is mainly of a constitutional character. It has not yet been published, but has been circulated confidentially in draft for the purpose of inviting representations from bodies and persons interested therein. You will see from the draft that in obedience to the expressed provisions of the Act they have given to each Inn of Court the appointment of one member on the Senate of the University. The time has not, however, arrived for asking your Inn to exercise that power.

I have the honour to be, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

T. BAILEY SAUNDERS.

And I also will and desire that the Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, and Fellows for the time being of the University of London or the governing majority thereof may at any time if they shall choose appoint a Committee of their own body or of medical men for to control the number and cases of diseased or injured animals to be taken charge of, and to decide about the purchase of diseased or injured animals or their carcases for the promotion of science, as well as for to determine about any contingency not hereinbefore provided for relative to the said Animal Sanatory Institution. And I will and direct that any such controlling Committee, if appointed, shall be so only from year to year, and that as to any of the rules, orders, or regulations of such Committee, there may be privilege of appeal to the Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, and Fellows of the University of London."

The validity of this Bequest was contested by Mr. Brown's executors and next of kin, mainly on the ground that such an Institution as Mr Brown proposed to found would not properly be a Charity. But the Senate, considering that the question was one of public importance, and that the foundation of the Institution was highly desirable in the interests of science and humanity, instituted a suit against the executors to establish the validity of the Bequest. The case was heard on November 13th, 1856, before the Master of the Rolls, who decided that the Bequest was a "perfectly good gift," "a gift peculiarly connected with what is useful, and for the advantage of mankind"; and therefore he made "a Declaration that this is a good Charity."

At the instance of the University of Dublin an appeal against the decision of the Master of the Rolls was carried before the Lord Chancellor and the Lords Justices of Appeal and heard on the 29th of April, 1857. The Lord Chancellor's Judgment, in which the Lords Justices concurred, ended by declaring that the case had been correctly decided by the Master of the Rolls, and that Appeal was "so thoroughly without foundation that it must be dismissed with costs."

Upon an order from the Master of the Rolls, the executors in April 1858, transferred to the University a Stock Warrant for £22,600 Three per cent. Consols, and a draft for £113 8s. 9d. The fund was allowed to accumulate at interest and by re-investment of dividends until the spring of 1871 (the nineteenth year after Mr Brown's death), when the value of the Stock amounted to £33,781 14s. 11d. The Senate then proceeded to execute the Trust by establishing the Institution, drawing up a scheme of management in accordance with the Will, and appointing an administrative Committee and a Professor-Superintendent.

A question having arisen as to whether the Mortmain Act would allow any part of the Trust Fund to be applied to the purchase of land, the difficulty was removed by a munificent gift to the Trust of £2,000 by Mr John Cunliffe, of Lombard Street, through the late Sir John (then Dr) Burdon Sanderson, and a further sum of £700 by Dr Sanderson himself,—Dr Sharpey and Dr (afterwards Sir Richard) Quain being named Trustees; by means of which gifts an eligible site was purchased in Wandsworth Road, Vauxhall. Upon this site the requisite buildings were forthwith erected, and, with the appropriate fittings and subsequent additions and alterations, were paid for out of the proceeds of the sale of about £5,000 worth of stock.

Treasury Grant-in-Aid.

Until the year 1901 all Examination Fees received by the University were paid to the Exchequer, and the Cost of Salaries, Examinations, Library and incidents was provided by an annual vote of Parliament. Representations were made to the Treasury by the University that this arrangement should cease, that an annual grant-in-aid should be voted, to be expended at the discretion of the Senate, and that in fixing the amount of the grant-in-aid regard should be had not only to the expenditure of the University as hitherto constituted, but also to the great extension of its functions under the provisions of the University of London Act.

In a Treasury Minute of the 21st February, 1901, it was agreed that the existing financial arrangements were "incompatible with the altered position of the University and somewhat derogatory to its independence," and an arrangement was made by which the University should retain the revenue from fees, and the Exchequer should defray the following expenses :—

(1) The Building occupied by the University, representing a rent of (say) ... ..	£ 2,200
(2) Contribution in lieu of rates ... ..	2,000
(3) External maintenance and repairs ... ..	500
(4) Superannuations ... ..	1,000

In addition, the University was to receive an Annual Grant-in-aid of £8,000, out of which the University would defray the cost of internal maintenance and repairs, fuel, light and water, stationery and printing, estimated for the future at £4,800, leaving a sum of £3,200 towards the cost of the salary of a Principal Officer, additional examining Clerical and other Officers, and incidental expenses.

ALBERT KAHN TRAVELLING FELLOWSHIPS.

These Fellowships, each of the value of £660, were established to enable the persons appointed to them to travel round the world. The Founder's object is in no sense to further any special line of individual or academical research, but to enable men of proved intellectual attainments to enter into personal contact with men and countries. The English Fellowships are part of the Founder's general scheme for the establishment of similar foundations in various countries of the world, and endowments have already been made for this purpose in France, Germany, Japan, and the United States of America.

The Trustees are the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Chief Justice, the Speaker, Lord Avebury, and Sir Henry Miers, the Principal of the University of London, the last mentioned being the honorary secretary of the Trustees. The Trust is administered at the offices of the University of London.
